

Website Privacy Policy

Last updated December 15, 2010

Clinical Computer Systems, Inc. (CCSI) respects and is committed to the privacy of visitors to our Website. While we do not ask for any registration or personal information to browse our site, some information is automatically gathered about your Internet Protocol (IP) address, Web browser and computer system to improve the usefulness of our site and to prepare aggregate reports that identify which pages are frequently visited, the number of visitors to our site and how long visitors stay on each page.

We do not gather any personal or identifying information about you unless you voluntarily submit this information to receive additional information as listed on our Contact CCSI page or to register for educational Webinars. All information submitted to us is confidential, and we do not sell such information to third parties.

CCSI is proud to partner with Professional Education Center (PEC) and to share Webinar registration information with PEC in order to offer our customers the highest quality of continuing education.
